IN DIETZ CASE

JUDGE WINSLOW BRINGS MAT-TERS TO A CRISIS TODAY.

RETURNABLE NEXT FRIDAY

Petition Of Attorney For Cameron Dam Defender Is Granted By Court.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., Dec. 2.—Immediate action by the supreme court of Wisconsin on the case of John F. Dietz, "hero" of Cameron Dam, will be taken as the result of a writ of habeas corpus issued by that court this morning.

Chief Justice J. H. Winslow signed a mandate ordering Sheriff Michael Madison to bring Dietz before the supreme court on December 9 and show cause why he is holding the prisoner.

Attorneys for Dietz filed his petition, alleging that he is being unlawfully held, that he has been denied rights guaranteed him by the constitution and that there is a conspiracy of Sawyer County Court and other officials against him, to prevent him from securing release on bail and to ruin him and scatter and destroy his family.

He alleged that the Sawyer County district attorney and court officials have refused to allow Dietz and his attorneys to file papers and to make proper motions in court.

A separate proceeding is promised with reference to the alleged conduct of these local officials.

61ST. CONGRESS
FINAL SESSIONS

CHIEFLY INTERESTING BECAUSE IT ENDS MANY CAREERS.

TO OPEN ON MONDAY NEXT

Tuesday Will Be Devoted to Both Houses to the Reading of President
Taft's Annual Message.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—With the opening of the final session of the Sixty-first Congress but two days away senators and representatives from near and far are arriving in Washington today on every train.

Following custom, both houses will adjourn noon after their convening at noon on Monday out of respect to the memory of those members who have died during the recess of Congress.
Five senators and three representatives have died since the beginning of summer. The vacancy caused by the death of Senator Daniel of Virginia has been filled by the appointment of ex-governor Swanson. Senator Percy was chosen to succeed to the seat of the late Senator McLaughlin of Mississippi. Governor Sanders of Louisiana was selected to succeed the late Senator McNary, but he later declared to retain the governorship and appointed Judge J. H. Thornton to the senatorship. Some question was raised as to the validity of this procedure and the Louisiana legislature is now in special session to settle the matter. Lafayette Young of Des Moines has been appointed by Governor Carroll of Iowa to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Dalliver, former Governor Terrell of Georgia has likewise been appointed to fill out the term of the late Senator Clay.

The deceased representatives are Samuel L. Gilmore of Louisiana,
Charles C. Tirrell of Massachusetts, and Walter C. Brownlow of Tennessee. Their successors were chosen at the regular elections last month.

Tuesday is likely to be devoted to both houses to reading of President Taft's Annual message to Congress, and after that the lawmakers should be able to get down to business almost immediately, as the details of organization and committee changes will require little time. The opinion is gaining ground that little else than the passage of the various appropriation bills will be attempted.

In the senate the session will mark the farewell appearance of many members who for many years have been the leaders of various factions in the upper house. Chief among these are Senator McClure of Rhode Island, and Hale of Maine, two of the oldest members of the upper house in point of service and for many years among the most conspicuous leaders in that body.
Both announced early last summer their intention to retire from the senate at the expiration of their present terms.

Another of the "old guard" whose career in the senate will end with the session about to begin is Senator Burrows of Michigan who was defeated in the primaries by Representative Townsend. The senatorial seat of New York will also appear for the last time as a member of the senate in the election of the Empire State having renounced his senatorship. Indiana will pass out and will be succeeded next March by John W. Kern, the Democratic vice presidential candidate two years ago. Warner of Missouri, Dick of Ohio and Lean of New Jersey are other conspicuous members of the senate who will pass out with the end of the Sixty-first Congress.

The leaders and old timers of the house who will close up their official careers as members at this session are almost too numerous to mention.
Many of the prominent members on the republican side were slaughtered in the primaries chiefly as a result of the rising tide of "insurgency" and to those were added many more who were buried beneath the Democratic landslide in November.

Prominent among the vanquished
in the house are Representatives Fowler of New Jersey, Tawney of Minnesota, Boutwell of Illinois, Livingston and "loward of Georgia and Caldwell and Reeder of Kansas. Still others who will appear as "Exs" after this session are Washington
Michigan, A. M. Byrd of Mississippi,
Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, J. A. T.
Hull of Iowa, E. C. Burleigh of Maine,
S. E. Mudd of Maryland, Joseph P.
McConnell of North Carolina, G. F.
Huff of Pennsylvania, O. W. Gillespie and Ralph D. Cole of Ohio.
Nathanial D. Sperry, of the Second Connecticut district, the oldest member of the house in point of years, is retiring voluntarily at the end of this session. He is eighty-three years old. But the "father of the house" in point of service, Gen. H. H. Bingham of the first Pennsylvania district, comes back smilingly, having been numbered among the victors at the November election. General Bingham has served continuously in congress
since the Forty-sixth session, a period of over thirty years.

A Stunning Surprise.

Congressman George W. Taylor was talking in Demopolis, Ala., about the hard times.

"Hard times are bound to be full of unpleasant shocks and stunning surprises," he said. "I remember the last panic and a sermon that a Mobile pastor preached."

"The pastor, in a powerful discourse, urged economy and retrenchment on his congregation. In view of the hard times there should be no extravagance, no useless expenditure, he said, but every outgo ought to be pared down."

"His strong sermon had a swift and unexpected effect. The congregation, before dispersing, held a church meeting and unanimously reduced the man's salary from $2,000 to $1,500."

Effective Fog Shifter.

A very effective fog shifter, by the way, is a good snowstorm. Last boxing day the snow that fell on the roof of the Lancet office was analyzed, and the result compared with a similar analysis of snow that fell in Kent. The result showed that the London snow, which was chiefly made up of sulphur, tar and organic ammonia, fetched down with it a large percentage of the coal smoke that is a chief constituent of London fog, while the Kent snow when melted, was like distilled water. —London Daily News.

Letters of Interest Found.

The Universalist church in Gloucester has discovered what it considers a priceless treasure in an old desk once the property of John Murray, the father of the faith in this country. The piece of furniture was about to be thrown away when a member of the parish committee, in rummaging through the drawers, found letters proving its identity. Murray came to this country in 1770, and later joined the revolutionary forces as chaplain. He was compelled to resign on account of ill health, and returned to Gloucester, where he founded the present church. —Springfield Republican.

The Husking Bee in Maine.

One of the old rural institutions, which is still in vogue in spite of the progress of modern inventions, is the old-fashioned husking bee, says the Kennebec Journal. The Journal's correspondents from various sections of the state have been giving interesting accounts for the past two weeks of gatherings of this nature in their locality with the accompanying harvest supper, which seem to differ in but few points from those recorded in the pages of New England story writers of 25 and 50 years ago. About the only difference seems to be that the modern farmer can call all his guests together by telephone instead of waiting for slower methods of summoning them to bring results.

VALUE giving is our purpose here; to see that you get more for your money in real quality, in service of the goods, in all the things you buy clothes for, than anybody else can give you. The point is, we're as much interested in giving it as you are in getting it.

For example, these Overcoats, the prices, especially the $11.00 and $14.75, and up to $30.00, at any price you name we'll show you the most possible value; by "most possible" we mean that, at that price, more real value cannot be put into clothes.

Our suit department is a wonder, so many suits constitute the showing. You are not required to choose from one maker—all the big ones are represented here; some as low as $10.00, others as high as $30.00, with strong lines at $15, $18, $20 and $22.50.

The popularity of our shoe section is unprecedented. The increasing sales denote greater value-giving. We show four exceptionally strong lines in Selby and Queen Quality Shoes for women.

$3.00, $3.50 and $4.00

Bostonians and Kneelands for men at $3.50, $4.00 and $4.50. You who want stylish, dependable shoes at a moderate price should see our big line, all the popular lasts and leathers.

New York, N. Y.—After struggling for five years to regain the title of the largest point winners in the world, the New York Athletic club has finally succeeded in attaining its ambition. To date the New York A. C. leads in the fight for point championship by a small margin. Up to and including the indoor championships the wearers of the Mercury Foot have tallied 1,581 points, while their rivals from the I. A. A. C. have scored 1,529 points.

Of the individual point winners Martin Sheridan again heads the list. For the 11th consecutive year the great all-around athlete of the Irish club has tallied more points than any other athlete in the world. Melvin Sheppard, the new record holder, is a close second, only one point behind his club.

The clubs have seen to it that they have available material with the result that each has added many new members to its team. From the colleges and universities the New York A. C. gathered many of its men, and it has developed so many youngsters into champions that at any time in the last half dozen years, its representatives have won more than their share of titles and senior metropolitan titles.

In the national events the Viking Pirates carried off the honors. They ran away with the junior event and in a desperate struggle annexed the senior honors. While the Irish club has many new recruits in its line-up, the bulk of the points have been scored by its veterans. Sheridan, Sheppard, Flanagan, Cloughen, Ahern, Dunlap, Collins, Brownlow, McDonald, Eiler and Archer have worked up to their standard and tallied up many points.

WOMEN POOL PLAYERS SHOW CLASS.

Among these Mrs. Kling is considered one of the strong competitors for the United States women's pool championship.

Stephen Bull of Racine has purchased some 350 acres of land and marsh in the vicinity of Mud Lake, just north of Koshkonong, and will use the property for a duck farm and hunting preserve. Mud Lake has always been a favorite spot among hunters who will regret to learn that it is now private instead of public property.

SERIOUS FIRE AT WOODSTOCK STORE

Immense Accumulation of Soot in Sealed Chimney Ablaze Last Night—Firemen Worked Over Two Hours.
For over two hours last evening the fire department combated a serious chimney fire in Mrs. Mary H. Woodstock's millinery store, 111 West Milwaukee street. An accumulation of soot which filled the sealed chimney from the basement to a point above the second floor was burning like a furnace and the bricks got so hot as to threaten to set fire to the shelving and floor joists. It was necessary to batter in the chimney wall with sledge-

THE LIBERALS NOW SEE HOPE

AFFAIR HURTS UNIONISTS

Asquith Says Leaders "Turn About Face" in Lords Issue Is "Almost Indecent"—Change in Political Situation Shown by Betting.

London, Dec. 2.—The attempt of ex-premier Balfour, the leader of the Unionists, to remove tariff reform from the field of politics may bring about an unlooked-for result.

The question looms larger than ever in the campaign, inasmuch as that Mr. Balfour himself, in a speech at Reading, explained that his party had not altered its views on this subject and that tariff reform was still a chief plank in the party's constructive policy. However, he said, the Unionists needed to obtain the formal and explicit consent of the people thereto. The policy of referendum, he declared, was consistent with the true idea of popular government.

The fact is that Mr. Balfour's pronouncement on November 29 that he was willing to submit tariff reform to a referendum has rather soured than knit his party, and supplied the Liberals with another effective argument against tariff reform—namely, that Mr. Balfour has been compelled to sidetrack it.

Asquith Replies to Balfour. The interest in the speeches centered in Premier Asquith's reply to the opposition leader. This was delivered at a great meeting at Wolverhampton. The premier said:

"We are living in times of rapid movement, when it is a relief to wake up in the morning and find some fresh part of the constitution reconstructed."

He described Mr. Balfour's "turn about face" on the questions of reform of the house of lords and tariff reform as "unique—almost indecent." He said he could not imagine a greater caricature of the referendum than putting a few abstract questions to the people without concrete embodiment of their proposals. If any one but a sane and responsible statesman had contemplated such a scheme he would be called a madman.

After a study of the working of the referendum in foreign countries, the premier continued, he had arrived at the conclusion that it had proved a most unsatisfactory and disappointing method of ascertaining public opinion.

Betting Odds Show Drift.

The change which has taken place in the political situation since the failure of the conference on the house of lords reform, less than a month ago, is demonstrated in the reversal in the betting odds. The figures now are even money that the government's coalition majority will be reduced from 124 to below 50.

This means the Unionists must gain 23 seats. Some enthusiastic members of that party are sanguine enough to expect an actual majority above the Liberals, Irish Nationalists, Laborites and Socialists.

The revolution of feeling throughout the country is so strong that a Unionist landslide would be by no means impossible if the election could be delayed a month, but with first pollings only two days away such a result is hardly probable. The anger and exasperation of the radical combination, the members of which expected to snatch a victory in the unnecessary election is becoming outspoken.

The first mate and one of the crew have been taken into custody and it is believed will be charged with setting fire to the ship.

FOSS OPENS CAMPAIGN AGAINST LODGE'S RETURN

Governor-Elect Asquith Senator's Voting Record and His Attitude on Tariff and Reciprocity.

Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 2.—Gov. Elect E. N. Foss opened his threatened campaign against Senator Henry Cabot Lodge here in a speech assailing the latter's voting record in the senate.

Mr. Foss said that the verdict of the people of the Cape Cod district in electing him to congress last spring "sealed the doom of Cannonism," compelled the national administration to seek reciprocal trade relations with Canada, roused Senators Aldrich and Hale to "abandon their seats in the United States senate" and gave to the country at large the first real hope of tariff revision.

Speaking directly of Senator Lodge, Mr. Foss said:

"Working in silence and secrecy, he resorts to his self-constituted political machine, the machine which has dominated Massachusetts politically for years. He is seeking the counsel of those whom he serves, the privileged interests, and has ignored the verdict of the people. He has ignored the fact that he should represent the people and considers that he is the representative of special interests, believing that their endorsement is all-sufficient for him."

MRS. SCHENK WEEPS IN JAIL.

REPORT TO FAVOR BALLINGER.

Regular Republican Members of the Investigating Committee Meet.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Six of the seven regular Republican members of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee met and decided to make a report to congress before the holiday recess. Senators Nelson, Root, Flint and Sutherland and Representatives McCall and Olmsted were present, and they found themselves agreed upon all essential features of the case. Representative Denby of Michigan will also vote with them in making the majority report, which will, it is understood, be favorable to Secretary Ballinger.

The Democratic members of the committee were not present, nor was Representative Madison, insurgent Republican, who voted with the Democrats in making the report, which was submitted at Minneapolis last summer, in which Secretary Ballinger was condemned and his dismissal from the cabinet demanded.

"SNATCHED" LIKE MAIL SACK.

Brakeman on Freight Is Jerked Out of Cab by Postal Contrivance.

Rawlins, Wyo., Dec. 2.—George A. Hall, head brakeman on a Union Pacific freight train, had a remarkable escape from death when he was jerked from the cab of the engine in which he was riding by the "snatcher" on the mail car of a flyer moving the opposite direction. He was carried several hundred feet before he dropped. And, although the hook struck him with a force that ordinarily would have cut a man in two, he was not severely injured.

"CISSE" LOFTUS IS A MOTHER.

Presents Boy to Her Husband, Dr. A. H. Waterman of Chicago.

London, Dec. 2.—"Cisse" Loftus, or Mrs. A. Waterman, as she is known in private life, became the mother of a baby boy last night. Cecelia Loftus was married on June 9, 1909, to Dr. A. H. Waterman of Chicago. This was her second marriage, her first husband having been Justin Huntley McCarthy, the English dramatist, with whom she eloped while playing a theatrical engagement in England.

The proposed increases have been suspended by the commission until February 1. Ten days at least will be required for argument and it is believed that it will be necessary for the commission to make a further suspension of the rates.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 2.—When William J. Bryan's admirers attempted to hang his picture beside Taft's and Governor Haskell's in Oklahoma senate chamber, Lieut. Gov. Holladay declared "never while I am in the chair," and the picture was turned to the wall on the floor.

Bryan's picture in Oklahoma's house was covered by a map of Oklahoma City. These snubs at Bryan are believed to be the result of Bryan's request in 1908 that Haskell resign from the Democratic national executive committee.

DAILY DIET HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN Food Specialist.

HURRIED EATING.

The habit of hurried eating, which has become so general among Americans as to be regarded by foreigners as a national characteristic, is largely responsible for our being known as a nation of dyspeptics. The relation between food and thought is so intimate that we cannot vary the one without affecting the other. Hurry and worry induce a habit of hurried eating, while measured eating has a soothing effect which is soon apparent in greater nervous energy. "It is for this reason, chiefly, that thorough mastication improves the general nervous tone and greatly increases endurance, aside from the saving of energy that results from relieving the stomach from doing the work that the teeth should do. The natural way to induce normal chewing is to eat only hard food."

Home Course In Health Culture

XII.—Home Care of the Eyes

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

We credit most our sight; one eye doth please
Our trust far more than ten ear witnesses.

—Herrick.

I agree with the hard headed, "grossly materialistic" philosopher who contended that "the brain secretes thought just as the liver secretes bile;" then indeed the eye is the "window of the soul." However, the eye is at least the window of the brain and in most intimate relation with that organ as well as with the general nervous system. In the sense that the eye reflects the emotions of the individual it is not so much the "window of the soul" as some people imagine. If the muscular tissue surrounding the eye were paralyzed the eye itself would have little power of expression.

Proper Illumination.

The human eye was originally adapted to daylight, and until the invention of printing the demands upon the eyes of the average man were mostly for distant vision in the sunlight and seldom for reading, especially by artificial light.

Under modern conditions both light and literature are at the command of the humblest citizen, although the literature, like the light, is not always of the best.

Probably the best quality of light for the eye is that of the coal oil lamp, provided a proper burner and shade are employed. The only objection to this light is the inconvenience of looking after it and the heat from its proximity.

The worst form of light is the flickering gas flame, which contains many yellow, irritating rays and is very objectionable on account of its unsteadiness. The Webber attachment overcomes these objections, but unless the eyes are shielded from this light its dazzling whiteness will prove irritating.

The incandescent electric light is also trying to the eye, although it gives an excellent quality of illumination. If the bulbs are shaded from the eye and made of ground glass, as they should be in dwelling rooms, the electric light is an ideal method of illumination, as it does not consume or vibrate the air, as is the case with the gas flame or oil lamp.

Correct Reading Position.

The position of the body while reading is almost as important as the quality of the light. The habit that some people have of reading in bed is usually injurious, not simply because physicians "do not believe in it," but for very definite reasons. The body is often held in a strained position, with the head bent forward, causing congestion of the eyes. If the book be placed upon a pillow or rest and the head fixed in a natural position little injury will result. Probably adult bookworms will continue to read in bed and "wreck" themselves up in all kinds of strained positions in their library chairs, notwithstanding all warnings, and eye strain, with its train of ill, will continue to distress them.

But with children a correct position and light supply while writing or reading is really of vital importance. Curvature of the spine may result from constant misposition at the school desk or while reading at home. Eye strain in the child may retard mental development and leave a lasting impression on both mind and physique.

The child should be trained to sit erect, with the shoulders squared. A desk that is too low or too high will compel an awkward position, especially when writing. Desks should never be placed so that the light shines in the pupils' faces.

Structure of the Eye.

Without entering into the minute details of the anatomy or physics of the eye, a word regarding its structure and refractive elements will assist in a proper understanding of the injury that may result from neglect or abuse of this delicate yet long suffering and resilient organ.

The eyeball is imbedded in a bony

The Feminine Nature.

rocket with an overhanging ridge, which well protects it from external injury.

The eye communicates with the brain through the optic nerve, which passes through a hole in the back of the bony eye socket and spreads out on the inner surface of the cavity of the eyeball to form the retina. The crystalline lens and its ligaments divide the eye into two chambers, the anterior and the posterior. The anterior chamber is very small and lies between the cornea, or outer surface of the eye, and the lens. It is filled with a fluid similar to tears, the aqueous humor. The posterior chamber is large and constitutes the cavity of the eyeball behind the crystalline lens. It is filled with a transparent, jellylike substance, the vitreous humor. The iris is a circular, muscular curtain, an extension of one of the coats of the eyeball, which by dilating or contracting controls the amount of light admitted to the interior of the eye. The shape of the crystalline lens is also controlled by the little ciliary muscles.

Varieties of Defective Sight.

Amigmatism is caused by an inequality in the curvature of the cornea. This may occur in any meridian of the eye and requires glasses that will so bend the rays as to correct the defect caused by the irregular surface.

Nearsightedness.—This is caused by an unduly long eyeball from before backward. The rays of light meet before they reach the retina. The cornea in such cases is usually abnormally convex.

Farsightedness.—This is caused by a short eyeball from before backward. The rays of light fail to meet before they reach the retina.

In both of the above conditions a distorted image is formed, and glasses are required either for near or distant vision.

Importance of Proper Glasses.

The degree of injury that results from errors of refraction depends upon the temperament and constitution of the individual as well as the extent of the error. Just as a little tobacco or alcohol will in some subjects produce chaos in the nervous system so will a slight refractive error in a person of unstable nervous organization cause a profound disturbance of the general health.

When a refractive error exists the ciliary muscles endeavor to correct it by altering the shape of the lens. Unless the error is extreme the effort is usually successful, and the patient thinks he has good eyesight. But a condition of tension exists in the mechanism of accommodation which will be reflected in a long train of nervous symptoms, especially headaches, unless the subject is of an especially robust and resistant type.

If the eye were a lifeless optical instrument any shopkeeper would be qualified to test it with a little training could prescribe the correct glasses. As the eye is a living organ it should be tested with due regard to that fact and by a physician who can study the eye conditions as a whole and not alone the optical conditions which have been created by a combination of the refractive error and the patient's effort to correct it. By certain drugs the accommodation of the patient is overcome, and the full degree of the error is revealed. The moral is not to trifle with the "window of your brain" by letting some man on the street fit you with glasses. You will save money and health by going to the "man who knows," a physician trained to the work.

When glasses are required they should be worn—the earlier the better. Some people keep away from the oculist just as they keep away from the dentist, paying dearly in the end.

Bathing the Eyes.

Ordinarily the eyes are kept clean by the secretion of the lacrymal glands, which is a weak saline fluid. When the eyes are irritated by dust or slightly inflamed a solution of boric acid, ten grains to the ounce of distilled water, is a useful preparation. Pure water is irritating and should not be rubbed or dashed into the eyes.

There are no mysterious or magic eye waters or cures for catarrh. The latter trouble is for the surgeon. All such nostrums either contain simple astringents, in which case they are harmless, but unduly expensive, or they contain powerful drugs, which mask disease, but do not cure it; and are dangerous when self administered. In using eye lotions the eye dropper is preferable to the eye cup. The latter washes the margin of the lids and may carry infectious matter to the delicate membrane covering the eyeball.

In acute inflammation ice cold compresses made of gauze and wrung out in boric acid solution should be used. Later on hot compresses may prove more serviceable and soothing.

When any member of the household has inflamed eyes he should exercise great care not to infect others. Separate towels should be used and subsequently sterilized, and compresses or handkerchiefs should be burned or sterilized.

Care of Children's Eyes.

The eyes of school children should be examined from time to time and errors of refraction corrected. Those with inflamed eyes should be sent home and treated until cured.

The eyes of the new baby should be carefully cleansed with boric acid solution. Any signs of inflammation should call for immediate medical attention or serious results, even blindness, may follow.

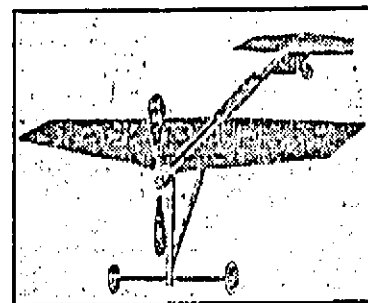

The care of the eyes should begin in childhood. When errors of refraction are found glasses should be worn regardless of prejudice. Long life and good health may depend upon two small disks of glass.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

A TOY AEROPLANE.

Captive airships which whirl around on a string are complete in every detail, and those made in celluloid are splendid toys that boys will be delighted to receive for Christmas presents.

The popularity of electric traction is reflected in the increased sales of electric trains and trams. The motorcar and trolley figure prominently on the shelves. These are provided with hooters, adjustable hoods, windows which can be lowered, glass screens, lamps and even the telltale taximeter itself. Monkeys and bears on trapezes, which squeal and grunt continually, are new and are bound to cause endless fun. There are those which turn innumerable somersaults until the motive power gives out.

In the parlor and board game department new ideas are rampant. The old fashioned Christmas tree may be superseded by the lucky pie, a big box full of prizes bearing numbers, which have to be drawn for.

The Always Popular Tool Chest.

There are few boys who are not "tickled to death" when Santa Claus

leaves them a tool box, and now that manual training is taught in the schools most boys know how to use the tools intelligently. But they must be of the best quality to be of any practical value. And a watch! Well, the height of a boy's glory is reached when he gets a really true timepiece. The popularity of the watch is well exemplified in one of Mr. Dooley's famous stories, in which the hero prayed for a watch as a Christmas gift, but, much to his disgust, received a hair chain that raveled.

Things a Boy Likes.

He likes a pair of hockey skates, footballs, an air rifle, college pennants, a desk, games, jackknives, the clips, and if you want to delight his heart give him a silver pocketknife with his monogram on it. School and college plus and just now the monogram scarf-pin may be what he'll want. Among more useful presents are to be found, sweaters, school or dress suits. If the boy is interested in wireless telegraphy all kinds of batteries and appliances will help along the cause. Should you want a present for the small boy or for one of larger growth who belongs to a drum corps get him a really good drum and he'll be happy, but his parents probably will suffer. What difference? 'Tis Christmas!

What a Girl Likes.

If she is a wee lassie who can just trundle a doll's carriage or is old enough to feel the real responsibility of a doll as big as herself, she'll like nothing better than one of the up to date baby carriages exactly like those a real baby takes her airing in. The carriage illustrated is a new model put out for the Christmas trade and the cheapest of them sells for $3.50. The shape is the same at all prices, the difference being merely in the appointments of the carriage. Of course the very wee girl will have an old fashioned model or a very tiny replica of this new variety.

Proud as Punch is the small girl when she wears her set of furs that Kris Kringle has brought her. This year there is a fascinating assortment of these sets, ranging all the way from ermine to the near ermine, which is just plain rabbit or cat, but pretty and dainty nevertheless. Chinchilla is an attractive pelt for young girls, and lately even the black furs have been considered smart for youthful wearers.

Many of the favorite dishes of today have come down through the ages. Griddle cakes date back to the middle ages, when they were a favorite with the Pilgrims of Woburn; macaroni have taken their place as a dessert since the time of Cleopatra, and the boys have enjoyed gingerbread and the girls have lunched on pickles for 500 years, or ever since King Edward II. Muscular Woman with a Petition.
A lady of muscular proportions called to see the Serbian home minister, recently. Before the usher had done explaining she lifted him gently by the collar and penetrated to the sanctum. Here, with her back against the door, she read a lengthy petition from the mothers of a district destitute of schools. Then, with a bow to the minister and his secretary, she departed in peace.—Helgrade correspondence, Pull Mall Gazette.

TALE FOR CHILDREN, OF THE WILD GOOSE

Story Of Dusky and How He Was Served On a Thanksgiving Table All Because He Disobeyed His Mother.

While there is a story in the following little tale that every child could follow, still the beautiful little story of Dusky, the wild goose who disobeyed her parents and not the fate of all such naughty birds, but being served on a Thanksgiving table should interest them immensely. It is written by a gentleman to his little nephew and the Gazette did not even stop to ask the uncle's permission to publish it, but borrowed it from the nephew so that other boys and girls in Janesville who do not have Uncles to write them nice stories could enjoy it. It will not hurt some grown-ups to read it also.

I am sending in the same mail that carries this letter to you the wishbone of a wild goose which served as a "Thanksgiving" place for our dinner table, and the legend of this particular goose is somewhat as follows.

Very early in the spring of 1910, long before the pussy willows began to come in bud up here in Wisconsin, two wild geese that had been making a home for themselves away down south, where the waters of the Gulf of Mexico washed the shores of old Mexico on the west and Florida, Punta Gorda, Cleveland, and other large towns on the coast decided after some little discussion that they had better commence their annual migration to the north, where they would bring up the family of little geese that they had a right to expect, in the security that such an unfrequented part of the country would afford them.

So early one morning these two geese, (the father and mother geese) started out on the long journey to the north, and I will not tell you of the many narrow escapes they had on the way, many times they had to make long detours from inviting looking fields of corn fearing that some hidden hunter might be in a shock of corn and burst out on them with his gun and shoot them dead, and indeed one would be hunter from Janesville, who had just got a gun through some lottery scheme did try to get a shot at them, but they were too wise, and besides the hunter had forgotten to take along some salt to sprinkle on their tail just before he got ready to shoot and of course without that he could not do anything anyway.

After many narrow escapes and a long and tiresome journey they at last arrived up near the Labrador coast, and selecting a sheltered spot in a little cove they went to work and built a nest, and commenced to make all preparation for the young geese that they would soon have to provide for.

The old father goose after the actual work of nest building was over was not very attentive to the mother goose and often left her for many hours at a time to get along as best she might, and she was often forced to go hungry, and she was obliged to neglect her household duties long enough to go out and get food, so of course she got weak and thin with all of this hard work and poor victuals, but at last the young geese were hatched out and they soon commenced to look after themselves.

In the flock of young geese was one exceedingly bright and interesting one that the mother goose called "Dusky" on account of his plumage, or feathers being so dark, and with this particular young one she had the most trouble as he always seemed to be so forward and care free that she was apprehensive lest he got in serious trouble.

Often times she talked to him in the wild goose language and tried to tell him of the mighty hunters down in Wisconsin, on the shores of Lake Koshkonong who would later kill him if he was not careful, but "Dusky" was willful and would not listen, and just simply went out all the time with the rest of the young geese that were growing up around there, and they quickly recognized him as their leader, and decided that when they went south for the winter that they would let him lead the way.

Dusky continued to play and have a good time and grow fat and plump ready for his trip south, and one afternoon as the weather commenced to get cold he gathered his group of young friends together and said to them, "I shall now commence on our southern trip, and any young gosling that is not ready to go with us will have to wait and go with the old ones later and on a slower schedule, but in the morning every one of "Dusky's" play-fellows was on hand and with a loud "Honk, Honk," they started for the southland, and all went well with them as day after day they flew in the form of a capital A with Dusky proudly leading the way.

They flew a little out of the way at times in order to get at some particularly nice feeding ground that they had been told of by some goose acquaintances of theirs, and they made quite a long stop out in Dakota, where they came very near being shot and if the man had been a little nearer I suppose that he would have had Dusky for a "Thanksgiving" dinner instead of me. After the long Dakota rest they resumed their flight and going in a south-easterly direction they soon found themselves flying over a nice inland lake that was surrounded by large fields of corn in shock that the farmers had been unable to get in and in the corn field, in fact it was apparently a very fine place to stay and feed for a few days and have a good time, and besides this "Dusky" recognized it as being an old feeding ground of his mother's from the description that she had given him.

So they stayed and fed from day to day and were careful to spend the nights out in the middle of the lake secure from the guns of the hunters that were always anxious to get a shot at them, until one morning after having spent the night away up towards the upper end of the lake Dusky called his band of devoted followers together and started for the south again.

The wind blew very heavy and strong from the east, and as Dusky swung in towards shore not having got quite high enough to make a good start, he heard a loud noise and felt a ripping and tearing loose of the muscles up near the right shoulder joint, but like the good soldier that he was he thought that he might be able to get away, and so he put every ounce of energy that he had in those wings of his in his effort to escape, but as he commenced to think that all was going to be well with him, there was another loud noise and the whistling of shot one of which struck him in the larynx, another in the pharynx, another went through the pleura and the last one would have struck him in the appendix if he had had one, but as he did not have any it struck him some where else.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS CAUSED DEATH OF CHILD

Three Year Old Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Wadsworth Succumbed to Dread Disease.

Evansville, Dec. 1.—The funeral of Isabelle Harriet Wadsworth, the little three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Wadsworth of Colorado, was held at one-thirty o'clock this afternoon from the home of the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Wadsworth. She came here with her mother to visit relatives early in the summer and was soon after taken very sick with infantile paralysis. A short time later she was taken to Madison and placed in the care of a specialist, but the best of skill and the tenderest nursing could not stay the ravages of the disease and on Tuesday, Nov. 29 she passed quietly away. The remains were brought to this city this morning and interred by her parents, Mrs. Jennie Wilber and son, Perry, Miss Mattie Gannon, and Mrs. E. M. Stebbins. Rev. Elton A. Cope of Ft. Atkinson conducted the service and Mrs. V. A. Astell and Mrs. Walter Biglow contributed the music. Calvert Cain, Terry Durner, Theodore Stair and Lauren Knapp acted as bearers.

VISITORS INSPECT STATE INSTITUTION

Many Changes Needed at the Blind Institute—Buildings Not Modern at All.

Yesterday was visiting day at the State School for the Blind, and in response to a general invitation, about a dozen Janesville citizens dined with Supt. Brown, expecting to meet the legislative committee, appointed to investigate the state school, and report as to its needs, but Senator Whitehead was the only member of the committee present.

In looking over the premises the visitors were impressed with the antiquated arrangement of the building and the unsanitary condition of the dormitory quarters, both located in the basement.

This defect has long annoyed the various managements, and can only be remedied by a separate building, which if built must be done by special appropriation. The money recently invested in the new manual hall, which is more ornamental than useful, would have been ample for the dining hall and servants' quarters.

The state building is massive and looms up like a monument of philanthropy, but it is far from modern in many ways. The girls who lodge on the fourth floor spend so much time in climbing up and down long flights of stairs that it taxes their strength and weakens vitality. The cottage system, now in use in many states, is the only system.

The people of the state desire to be liberal in dealing with the blind population, but so much ignorance prevails that their money is often spent with but little regard for comfort and convenience. These conditions will continue until governors and state officials in authority cultivate a more intelligent interest.

The visitors at the state school were impressed with the excellent management of Supt. Brown and the homelike atmosphere which pervaded the household. He is the right man in the right place.

Those who sat at the dinner table were Supt. Brown, Dr. A. J. Fisher, Milwaukee; Dr. S. S. Gowrie, Whitehall; the two members of the board present; also Senator J. M. Whitehead, Gen. G. Sutherland, Allen P. Loveloy, Prof. H. C. Buell, P. J. Mount, A. E. Matheson, H. M. Dedrick, L. G. DeArmand, Dr. J. P. Pemberton and Frank Behling.

WINTRY WEATHER CURTAILS SALES

Edgerton Reporter Says Tobacco During Past Week Has Been Rather Quiet.

According to the Edgerton Tobacco Reporter, wintry weather has interfered with the riding in the country districts the past few days and has curbed the sales of the new crop, but a quiet business is still being presented that is all the time reducing the unsold fraction. Sample sales coming to notice showing the prices paid are:

John Abler 100 at $14.30,
C. H. Egro, 80 at $14.00,
O. Dahl, 120 at $13.00,
Ole Gusterson, 80 at 7c,
Antonie Christenson, 80 at $13.00,
H. M. Severson, 80 at $13.00.

Old leaf continues to be in fair demand and there is a moderate movement from local packers' hands. The Hedges packing of '08 at Evansville of 25000 has been sold at A. S. Flagg, H. T. Sweeney reports the sale of 20000 for the week and the purchase of 7000 of '06 and '07 goods. John Linnas & Co. sold a 7200 lot of '08 to Decker, A. Jensen & Sons bought 5000 of '06 of L. O. Lion & Son and 4000 of B. Hardwick for account of manufacturers.

A short season of ending weather has come since last report but only a very small portion of the crop could be taken from the sheds.

The shipments out of storage reach 635 cases from this market to all points for the week.

A brief season of ending weather early in the week was not of sufficient duration to permit of much of the hanging tobacco to be removed from the curing sheds for stripping, much to the disappointment of growers whose tobacco is sold and are anxious to complete the delivery. The hanging leaf is reported to be more thoroughly cured and ready to be stripped than in most seasons at this date, as the warm, dry October had furnished exceptional weather to accomplish this purpose. The crop therefore could be quickly prepared for market as soon as removed from the barn when ending weather arrives. If the proper damp should come any time now growers would be able to count on money for their holiday expenditures, while the opening of a few warehouses in the packing centers would make matters a good deal easier along about Christmas time. In any event the hope is that winter does not set in without being preceded by a series of warm rains and the accompanying tobacco case.

FINE ATTRACTION SATURDAY EVENING

Manager Myers Has Secured Louis Mann In His Latest Production For This Week.

Theatre goers of Janesville should not miss the opportunity of seeing Louis Mann in "The Cheater" on Saturday afternoon and evening at the Myers theatre. Mr. Mann is one of the most finished and polished actors on the American stage today and under the William A. Brady management he is surrounded by a most capable company. Years ago Louis Mann and his wife Clara Lipman appeared in two plays that are now classics. The Girl from Paris and the Telephone Girl. Both were the rage of the seasons they appeared in and had long runs on Broadway when runs meant something, the old Herald Square theatre being the scene of their triumphs. Of late years Mr. Mann has appeared in strong plays, his last season's offering being "The Man Who Stood Still." The appearance here of Mr. Mann is one to be a subject of congratulation and he should have an excellent house.

WALTER'S DRAMA ABLY PRESENTED

"Paid in Full" Dealing with Problems of Modern Society Presented Last Evening.

Eugene Walter's powerful problem play, "Paid in Full," occupied the boards at the Meyer's Theatre last evening before a rather small but a very attentive audience. It is one of the best plays of its kind that has ever been presented in recent years as is shown by the fact that five companies of the United Play Company which played "Paid in Full" last season are again being maintained during the present one. Its theme deals with the problems of present day life with a realism that borders on the tragic and teaches a moral with unexcelled vividness.

The plot centers around the trials of the Brooks family and their struggle to get on in the world. Joe Brooks, which character was ably portrayed by George Cole, is an $18 a week clerk who in resentment at not being advanced by his hard-headed employer steals from the latter's funds. When he is found out he tries to shift the blame on his young wife whose loyalty and honor is above reproach and even attempts to sacrifice her to gain immunity from punishment. His exhibition of cowardliness and viciousness makes him despicable; he is the very extreme in selfishness and vice. The character of Jimmy Smith, portrayed by Chester Beach offers a very pleasing contrast to Brooks. He is amiable, unselfish, self-sacrificing almost to a fault, and who is in consequence beloved and respected by all who come in contact with him, even to his gruff old employer, ex-senator William. Edmund A. Sprague's presentation of Capt. Williams was above reproach and that gruff individual hearted display at the last some very clever characterizations and proves that he is not so ungracious after all, but that he is possessed of a very keen insight into character.

The plot of the play is ably dealt with and the cast which presented it last evening brought out its full significance.

Manners vs. Mannerism.

There's a vast difference between manners and mannerisms. For instance, manners takes its soup softly and quietly, while mannerism gorges it. Manners says: "Taste the butter, please," while mannerism bites a chunk out of a piece of bread and stutters: "Slip me the grease, will you?"—Detroit Free Press.

More Watches Will Be Given for Holiday Presents This Year Than At Any Season Since the Production of the American Watch—Why?

Because the timepiece is not considered a luxury but a necessity.
Because people are getting tired of carrying the cheap watch that cannot be relied upon and demand an accurate time keeper which the Elgin, Waltham and Hamilton watch companies are producing at less money than ever before.
Because Fathers watch may be old and unreliable.
Because Mothers duties are greater than ever and it is necessary that she should know the exact time.
Because your son has reached the age he should have impressed upon him the necessity of being on time.
Because your daughter may require one in the near future for the school or hospital service.

These are the reasons that have created a demand that has not heretofore existed in the watch market. The month of December will be a special watch month with us and we have made special preparations for this season by purchasing a greater variety of filled and solid gold cases than ever before.

Think it over now—it is none to early—come to the store perhaps we can give you some ideas in regard to price and quality that will please you.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company, Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

Then Loveland had acquired his shoulders and marched out into the night, not inclined to try any more hotels. He felt very young in his loneliness and humiliation, and his heart yearned wistfully for the shabby Scotch shooting box where his mother lived and thought long thoughts of him.

He remembered hearing Betty or Jim Harbrough say that in American towns a man might call upon a family he knew well up to the hour of 10 in the evening. It was not nearly 10 yet, and though there was no family in New York whom Val knew well, it was a case of any port in a storm.

The Chidgates were now out of the running, and the Miltons, but a Mr. and Mrs. Beverly with a daughter had

"THEY ARE TOO MUCH ENGAGED TO SEE ANYBODY TONIGHT."

(half apologetically) invited him to visit at their house in Park avenue. They were rich or richish, though with a trail of trade behind them, and the girl was pretty or prettish.

He had candidly refused the invitation, pleading many engagements difficult to keep if visiting, but he could easily explain the late call by lightly recounting the story of his misfortune, making a jest of it and throwing himself on the family's mercy. He hoped and believed that they would insist upon his staying all night in their house; also that a loan sufficient to pay his hotel bill and redeem his luggage might be suggested.

The prospect of release from all his woes was so soothing and apparently so easy to compass that the mere thought was a warming cordial. Val walked briskly back into Fifth avenue and asked the way of the first man he met. He found Park avenue a dignified street and with the pleasant anticipations ran up the steps of the Beverly's house, the number of which had fortunately stuck in his memory. There were lights in all the windows of the two lower floors, and as he pressed the electric bell he saw a window lit across the half-transparent silk curtains, a shadow which was like a faint silhouette of plump little Madge Beverly.

"It's all right. They're at home, thank goodness," he said to himself as he waited for the door to open, and a sense of calm well being fell upon him with the assurance that his troubles were over at last.

A neat servant was soon framed against a yellow background of cheerful light, and at some distance, screened in shadow, the man who had followed Loveland waited once more with a certain anxiety in his eyes.

Val inquired for Mr. and Mrs. Beverly. They were at home, said the servant, in the "living room" with a party of relatives who had come to welcome them back after their visit to Europe. If the gentleman would step into the reception room and hand up his card Mr. and Mrs. Beverly would be down in a minute.

"But when people are at home one doesn't send in one's card," said Loveland, arguing according to English ways. "Tell your master and mistress that Lord Loveland has called, but will not keep them long from their friends," said Val, growing impatient under the man's narrow look.

The servant resented the suggestion that as a free man in a free country he could have a master and mistress. And a Lord Anybody sounded like a practical joke to him, for though he had begun by being a Swede, he had been an American since he was short coated. However, he was well trained, according to his lights and the family traditions of the Beverlys. He ushered the practical joker into a handsome drawing room and vanished upstairs to explain the odd young gentleman who never announced himself with cards.

The servant returned with a grave face. Indeed, it could not have been more solemn if he had come to break the news that all Lord Loveland's surviving relatives had perished together in a holocaust.

"Mr. and Mrs. Beverly are very sorry, sir," said the man, "but they are too much engaged to see anybody to-night."

Val rose laughingly. "I'll trouble you to open the door," he said as the servant stood petrified. And so once more Lord Loveland was thrown upon the hospitality of the streets. The fitting shadows were gone from the windows, which still gleamed cheerily. But they were dark to the outcast's heart.

CHAPTER X. A PROPOSITION.

NATURALLY it occurred to Val that the trail of Cadwallader Hunter must have reached as far as the Beverly household, and almost he found it in his heart to respect a man with executive ability to accomplish so swift, so sweeping, so secret a revenge.

"The old fellow must have had a busy day," Loveland thought, half amused on top of hunger and discouragement. He pictured the major running lithely about since the snub at lunch time up to the last moment before dressing for dinner precluding all the friends made on board the Mauretania against the Englishman to whom he had proudly introduced them.

And, besides, one must grant a certain cleverness to a brain able to weave grounds of prejudice against a person—any, a personage—important and unimpeachable, as Loveland considered himself to be. How Cadwallader Hunter had done it Val could not imagine. But that the mysterious thing which had been done was the major's work he did not doubt.

Loveland had conscientiously distributed all the letters in the afternoon and had put the Waldorf-Astoria hotel as a New York address on his visiting cards. Now, owing to unforeseen circumstances (another name for the major's vindictiveness), that address was his no longer. When people called, as no doubt they would do tomorrow, they were likely to find that he had vanished into space. Yes, without doubt the best thing he could do was to call tonight at one of the houses where he had alighted in the afternoon. He would walk to the nearest one; but, now he came to think of it, which was the nearest and of which was he certain that he could remember the street and number? He went over the eight or nine names in his head and thought that he had kept them all straight, but to save his life he could not say which number, which street, appertained to which person.

This was a dilemma, almost a calamity. But one address seemed to stand out before his eyes, a number in Fifth avenue, and he thought it was Mrs. Anson who lived there. The house was a handsome one at a corner. He had admired it, and as it was not far up town he would not have more than a mile to travel. He could still make his visit and tell his pitiful tale before 10 o'clock.

He walked fast, and it was by an effort that the man of the shadows kept him in sight, for Val's legs were long, and his were not. But he did not contrive to cling close enough to see a tall figure slowly descend a flight of stone steps climbed with alert helpfulness a few moments earlier.

This time there was a discouraged droop of the head and shoulders, a dragging hesitation in the gait, which seemed to show that the wanderer did not know what his next move ought to be.

At last the watcher decided that he had waited long enough. The Englishman had come to the end of his tether. He was tired out and sick at heart—in fact, precisely in the mood which the other had been patiently expecting.

Loveland walked away from the house where Mrs. Anson was "giving a dinner party and registered that he was unable to receive visitors." Jim Harbrough's friend? Could it be that Cadwallader Hunter's tentacles had wormed themselves round this lady's sympathies also, or was the disquieting coincidence, like that of the bank?

"Good evening," said the man who had caught up with him, speaking somewhat breathlessly, but in a friendly voice.

"I was dining near you at the Waldorf-Astoria," explained the unknown. "Oh!" Loveland said. "You were with the Coolidges, I remember." The tips of his ears began to tingle.

"My name's Milton," the short, dark man introduced himself. "I've been trying to catch you up for some time. I know you met my wife and daughter on the Mauretania. That's why I was anxious to make your acquaintance."

Loveland laughed. "You're the first person since I left the ship who has wanted to make it," he retorted. "And it struck me this evening that neither Mrs. nor Miss Milton was keen on keeping it."

"After Milton is a child," answered Mrs. Milton's father. "She doesn't say her son's her own if her mother says it isn't, and Mrs. Milton has reasons over and above what any one else may have for not wanting to know you in front of me."

"Over and above what any one else may have?" Val repeated, lost in surprise at this turning. "Why should she or any one have reasons for not wanting to know me? That's the thing I should like to find out. Perhaps you'll be good enough to explain the mystery—if you can. What has Major Cadwallader Hunter been doing to put all New York against me?"

"So far as I can see, it wasn't the major who set the ball rolling, though, of course, he'd like people to think he was on to it from the first. And it seems he heard you give yourself away a bit to a girl one day on ship-board, or says he did. But let's not discuss that now. What you are or what you did before you stepped on board the Mauretania is nothing to me. The game you and I are in together, as it's up to me to show you, is this: You're in a pretty bad scrape, and you want to get out of it. Is that true or isn't it?"

"Yes, it's true enough," admitted Val. "But that's not the question. I—"

"Excuse me, it is the question where I'm concerned. I don't go back on that. I don't want to know anything or be in anything else. I can help you out of your fix. That's what I'm here to do."

"Thank you," said Val dryly. "But why?" He half expected that Mr. Milton's quip would be a promise in advance to make Fanny the Marchioness of Loveland.

"Well, I'm coming to that in one minute and a half. First, and foremost, let's chat about what I can do for you. Then we'll get to what you can do for me. I guess a thousand dollars would come handy to you, wouldn't it, especially if you could see half in hand cash tonight?"

"If I saw any 'hard cash,' as you call it, lying in the street and nobody claimed it I confess I might find a temporary use for the money," said Loveland. "The trouble is my letter of credit."

"I know all about that letter of credit. Just as well as if you'd told me," broke in Mr. Milton.

"Tomorrow it will be all right," Val went on.

"I wouldn't bet on its being all right tomorrow," said Milton. "But we can wait to talk business till the day after if you like. That'll suit me just as well, for I stand to make better terms, it's for you to say where. I can give you my card, and you can drop round at my club."

"What do you want me to do?" sharply asked Loveland.

"You'd like to know whether the candle's worth the game, eh? Well, I'm no Shylock. But see here—shall we come to terms over a drink? We're not far off the best bar in New York, and—"

"No, thank you," Val cut in decidedly, though he was cold enough and hollow enough within to be tempted by the thought of warmth and refreshment of any sort. "Tell me now what possible motive you, a stranger, can have in offering to lend me $200."

"The Only Thing That Will Relieve Neuralgia."

The piercing pains of Neuralgia, which often follows a bad cold or La Grippe, are frequently almost unbearable and few medicines afford any relief to the sufferer.

I am a rural mail carrier and have been a user of the Dr. Miles' medicines for years.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills can't be beaten. They are the only thing I have found that will relieve my neuralgia and I have tried most everything, besides medicine from the doctor. I am willing to tell anyone what the Anti-Pain Pills did for me.

CHARLES HILDBRANDT, Box 205, Woodville, Ohio.

If you, like Mr. Hildebrandt, have tried most everything in vain, why not do as he did, fight your aches and pains with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. Let the pills bear the brunt of the battle. No matter how stubborn the contest, they will come out victorious.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills stand on their record, which is a long list of cures extending back a generation.

Druggists everywhere sell them. If first package fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

Inundated with Postal Cards.

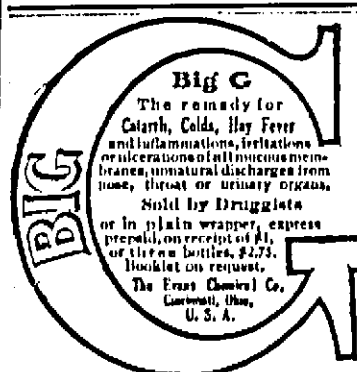

In New York city alone the post-office handles no less than 100,000 picture postal cards every day, and it is the same story elsewhere—in Chicago, San Francisco, New Orleans, Buffalo and in all the large cities. Moreover, it is not in the United States alone that these conditions exist. In Europe, too, all the postal services are actually inundated with postcards. It is officially stated that no less than 600,000,000 passed through the British postoffice during 1906.—Bohemian for January.

Stimulus Needed.

Human nature requires a stimulus, and the taking away of that stimulus is not the best means of keeping a man up to his best individualistic effort.

Prepared for Emergency.

"What makes you keep giving me fish for dinner day after day?" he inquired. "Are you particularly fond of it?" "No," she replied; "I was wholly unselfish. I read a lovely recipe about how to remove a fish bone when it sticks in your throat, and I wanted to try it."

TRY THIS TWO MINUTE CURE FOR COLD IN HEAD OR CHEST

It is Curing Thousands Daily, and Saves Time and Money.

Breathe the vapor that arises for two minutes, and presto! your head is as clear as a bell, and the tightness in the chest is gone.

Nothing like it to break up a heavy cold, cure sore throat or drive away a cough. It's a pleasant cure. You'll enjoy breathing Hyomel. You'll feel at once its soothing, healing and beneficial effects as it passes over the inflamed and irritated membrane. 50 cents a bottle, at druggists everywhere. Ask The People's Drug Company for extra bottle Hyomel Inhalant.

Savings Banks.

An Irishman was explaining American institutions to a green countryman. "A savings bank," he said, "is a place where you can deposit money to-day and draw it out to-morrow by giving a week's notice."

Lovers' Ending.

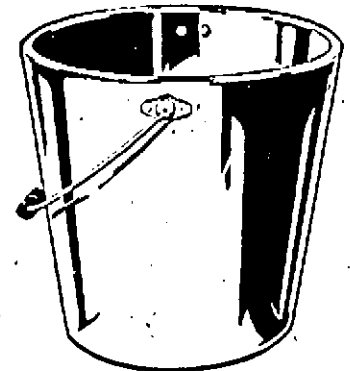

Says an advertisement in the London Express: "Mary—Waited three hours at appointed spot—until questioned by suspicious policeman. It is the price of love, it is too heavy a one for me to pay. Farewell, Potts."

What About That Dandruff Does not Color the Hair

J. C. Ayer Company, Lowell, Mass.

There is just this much about it: Dandruff is a germ disease, is most untidy, annoying, and leads to baldness. When chronic it is very stubborn, but surely yields to thorough and energetic treatment. All germs must be destroyed; the scalp must be restored to health. Here is the remedy: Ayer's Hair Vigor. Ask your doctor about using it. Do as he says. He knows.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION NOT MADE BY A TRUST

You'll never know how good a marksman you are until you try Robin Hood Ammunition. The next time you go gunning take a box of our shells with you and try them. You'll be astonished at your gain in accuracy. You'll know then just what we mean when we tell you that Robin Hood Ammunition shoots straighter, kills faster, gets there quicker, hits harder, and "kicks" less than any other ammunition.

"IT'S ALL IN THE POWDER"

- | HOW OURS WORK | HOW OTHERS WORK |
|--|--|
| 1. Its explosive force increases from breech to muzzle. The powder ignites and the shot is driven faster and faster along the barrel, reaching its greatest speed as it leaves the muzzle. | 1. As the hammer hits the primer, there is a great explosion and release of tremendous pressure. Greatest rate of velocity at the beginning of the discharge. Rate of speed decreases rapidly from breech to muzzle. |
| 2. Robin Hood Ammunition has no lost motion; it does not kick, but applies the driving force to the shot, and not to your shoulder. | 2. Hard kick or recoil, because explosive force comes all at once at your gain in accuracy. The force of the pressure that should be applied to the shot being sent back to your shoulder. |
| 3. Robin Hood Ammunition withstands any climatic conditions, and is not affected by age. | 3. Sensitive to climatic conditions and to age. |
| 4. Does not crush or disfigure the shot—gives a very even pattern—better killing circle. Will not lead, cut, or otherwise injure the gun. | 4. Because of force of discharge, the shot is often crushed and disfigured—making uneven pattern, and "straggling" the shot. |

Our four brands of powder are: Robin Hood Smokeless, loaded in Robin Hood and Comet Shells. Poudreless Smokeless, loaded in Clipper and Capital Shells. Rapidite Dense, Smokeless, loaded in Crescent and Autocrat Shells. Cellipane, Near Smokeless, loaded in Eclipse Shells.

We also make a line of Metallic Cartridges, .22, .25, and .38 calibre, that are without equal for target and gallery practice. They are loaded with smokeless powder and are equal for target and gallery practice. They are loaded with smokeless powder and are equal for target and gallery practice. NEVER ANY INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA OR SICK, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH

Your out-of-order Stomach feels fine minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Take your sour out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of the Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pope's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak; there is lack of gastric juices; your food is only half digested; and you become afflicted with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping, in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, bloating, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is tickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong; stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery. Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Dec. 2, 1870.—Jottings—Inside the Corn Exchange is an inscription which is not wholly appropriate to the place. In highly ornamental characters, framed and covered with a glass, is the divine command, "Speak the Truth." It was originally purchased for the benefit of one of the members of our Board of Trade—a man who was believed to be a disciple of Ananias, but when the beautiful design was shown him, as he let his gaze rest full upon it, the glass covering broke into a hundred pieces, and fell with an unwelcome clatter to the floor. Since that disastrous experiment no grain dealer has dared look at the inscription.

A. H. Baxter is a candidate for corresponding secretary of the Young Men's Association, H. P. Miller and Wm. Kennedy are both "slated" for the vice presidency, and C. S. Jackson and E. F. Welch will contest for the honor of taking charge of the money of the association during the ensuing year.

There is a prospect of run of business in the justice courts. The police force of the city is in pursuit of a man who has made himself obnoxious to the law, and in the country a man has already been arrested for the stealing of a halter. Two competent jurors wanted.

The semi-weekly teachers' meeting of the present term will be held tomorrow afternoon at the high school building. The usual exercises will take place. The patrons of the school and others are earnestly requested to be present.

As we understand it, Stanley B. Smith and E. F. Welch are the only candidates for the presidency of the Young Men's Association.

OLD AGE IS INEXORABLE

Men Find It Out When They Attempt to Frisk About in Boy Fashion.

If you ever doubt that you're growing old and woe, you fathers, just take the kids out into the woods and see the difference between yourself of today and yesterday.

You see them plunging about with whoops of joy, and generally living gladly.

And you—well, when you try to sit down your knees creak, and the leaves beneath you don't seem as they once did.

The golden sunshine flows through the trees; the rustle of small living things resounds through the woods; the perfume of rich ripening things floats to you, and within you something is struggling to break loose.

You don't know just what it is, but it hurts. You are too old now to run and whoop and carry-on like those kids. It would be beneath your dignity, but something within you seems calling to you, and your old body can't respond.

You want to yell and run—that is, you believe you do, but it's no use. Something is holding you back.

So there you sit and watch the children playing, and their happiness is as once yours was.

And it makes the heart ache to think of it—some day they will be even as you—longing to break loose into joy born of the autumn, but held back. Held back by something that we call old age.

A Way Out of a Difficulty.

An old Highlander, being sent one day for five yards of satin, forgot his errand, but, not to be done, said to the shopman: "Can you give me another name for the devil (devil) forby the devil?" The shopman said "Satan."

"That be him," was the answer, "Whang me off five-yards of him, white!"—Dundee Weekly News.

THEATER

From a theatrical point of view considered, the spirit of pure comedy seems to have exorted itself to a degree undreamed of. Essentially speaking, a comedy for some time past has been in the ascendancy, and no one was quicker to realize this state of affairs than Mr. Louis Mann who, at the close of his last seasons triumphant tour in "The Man Who Stood Still," had firmly concluded to continue with self-made the adaptation and called it "The Cheater."

In order to test the box office virtues of "The Cheater," Mr. Wm. A. Brady, Mr. Mann's manager, secured the Lyric Theatre in New York City for an indefinite period and for five months.

"The Cheater" played to an enormous business and commanded the criticism and enthusiastic consideration, and Mr. Louis Mann will be seen at the
